Let Your Light Shine

Friday, 8th May 2026 Newsletter

Dear Parents/Carers: As the Year 6s know all too well, next week is SATs week. Apart from wishing the group well in their endeavours (and thanking the year 6 families for their continued support this year), please be aware that late-comers may be delayed in coming into the school as staff will need to be found to escort them through the playground.

Kind regards, Chris Burman

Kingston Class had a fantastic day out at the Bristol Museum & Art Gallery on Tuesday. The children (photo left) took part in an exciting hands-on Greek workshop, where they got to handle and discuss real Greek artefacts, exploring different bases and vessels and discovering how they were used. They also looked closely at the patterns and designs, and learned how these objects help archaeologists uncover the stories of the past. This linked perfectly to the current inquiry into how creativity from the past still inspires us today — and it certainly did. Once again, we thank all the staff and volunteers for ensuring the day went so well.

TESCO

If you go to Tesco for your shopping, you may notice one of the blue token boxes is currently supporting Brent Knoll Primary. Funds raised will go towards buying some text-reading pens. Don't hesitate to grab a handful of tokens for us!

We sent out a Pupil and Parent Voice survey recently, aimed at families with children with additional needs. It would be great to get some more returns if you had a few minutes spare to complete the questions. It should just take a few minutes. Thank you.

Nicely coinciding with Sir David Attenborough's 100th birthday, the members of Russet Class - with some friends from Camelot - went up to Bristol today to visit the Bristol Aquarium (photo left). This venue has a great array of tanks on different levels all brimming with all sorts of sea-life, and the time flew by.
