'Let Your Light Shine' Matthew 5:16

Dear Parents/Carers: As your children may have told you, we are in the midst of another round of assessments this week (and next). These termly tests help teachers assess where the children are in terms of their learning, and therefore also help guide teachers as to what has gone well and what might need some more work. Please do ask if you have any questions about how we assess and what it means for your child. Kind regards, Chris Burman

There is a Book Fair on the weekend of the 23rd and 24th March in the Brent Knoll village hall and we have been informed there will be many books for sale, most in very good condition – and all being sold for £1.00 (hardbacks) and 50p for paperbacks.

In Monday afternoon's whole school assembly, prizes were awarded to Teddy, Ella, Annabelle, Eva, Albie, Dougie and Gabriel for their fantastic World Book Day artwork (photo right). Well done to all, and thank you again to everyone who took part.

Mrs Key's art club continues to be very busy and creative. This term, following on from their fantastic Green Man masks, the children have decorated some very large lizards (photo below), which are now on display in the school corridor alongside some quotes from the book, Holes, which also has lizards as a theme.

A very well done to Russet Class who went over to the Princess Theatre on Monday to perform in this year's Highbridge Festival. The children were amazing and read their poem to a large audience, which is always a bit nerve-wracking!

The next parent-teacher meetings will be on Monday 31st March. Details out next Monday.
